Darwin City Revitalisation

Darwin City Council has been successful in securing $3.6m in federal funding toward the Darwin City Revitalisation project. Council has pulled the project together with funding from the several sources. Other funding will be as follows ($1.15m from Darwin City Council, $1.75m from the Northern Territory Government, and a further $800,000 from the private sector).

The works will be project managed by Darwin City Council and work should commence in a matter of months. Work will be carried out in stages so as to minimise disruption to the business and social life of the central business zone.

Lord Mayor Graeme Sawyer, welcomes the collaboration of the 3 tiers of Government "This is a great example of governments working together instead of duplication and waste, we are really achieving something for Darwin working with and stimulating the private sector" he said.

The project aims to provide local jobs, boost Darwin's economic growth through public and private investment, improve pedestrian access opening up the city, while promoting environmental sustainability.

An extensive public consultation process was undertaken and was used to help formulate the various design elements. This is great news for Darwin.
